A conversation is incomplete without a set of questions. It doesn't matter with whom you are talking, but it will surely have a question. For e.g. while commuting, if a co-passenger asks whether it's a Chicago-bound train and you confirm it by replying yes to him. There are many instances when you will have to reply to someone that they are correct. In today's blog, you will learn English phrases that can be used to agree with someone or to say that the information is correct.

10 expressions to say someone is right

1. Yes, that's correct

This is the neutral response for agreement.

E.g. Reeta--Aren't you the one the top 3 contestants in Indian Idol?

Seema--Yes, that's correct.

2. You have hit the nail on the head

This sentence means 'saying exactly right about something'.

E.g. Narayan doesn't say much, but every now and then he hits the nail right on the head.

3. Spot on

That's spot on is used to praise and agree. It is the British slang for well done, great job, good job, perfect or right on.

E.g. Mr.Gupta's analysis of the company is spot on
