An important role in English grammar is played by determiners, the words that appear at the beginning of the noun phrase. They go with the word 'determine', as they identify whether the noun phrase is general or specific. They bring out the reference that is made by a noun.

Types Of Determiners

There are different types of determiners. Let us discuss them one by one.

1. Articles:

Articles are divided into two categories, i.e., indefinite and definite article. There are three articles: 'a', 'an' and 'the'.

'A' and 'an' are referred as the indefinite articles. They are used to refer some group and also a person. For example,

- He is an Argentinean striker.
- The joker creates a lot of chaos.

'The' belongs to the definite article category. It is used to refer to something that has already been mentioned and also refers to the group of people or a group too.

- The man was responsible for the downfall.
- The Americans had always been stronger.

2. Demonstratives:

Demonstratives show the relationship between the speaker and the object or a person. It makes use of terms, such as this, that, these and those, to establish the relationship. Example:

- This is a nice cup.
- Is that Michael's bike?
